Dear Karen,

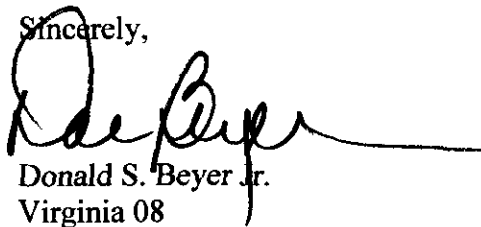

I write to correct a small error in my annual Financial Disclosure for 2016. On Schedule A, I list 28 shares of Hanover Insurance Group (THG), worth roughly $2,500. This is the first time I have listed this as an Asset, but I have owned these shares for an indeterminate amount of time.

I purchased the Hanover Insurance sometime in the distant past, with no record of when or where. I was unaware that these shares actually had any value. I receive a sporadic small dividend check, usually about $11. Sometime last year, I noticed that the check included a stock symbol (THG) and looked it up. To my surprise, I had another asset.

I spoke to the staff on the House Ethics Committee, who suggested I write you to inform you of my long-term (if inadvertent) ownership of these 28 shares.

Please let me know if there is anything else I need to do to comply with our laws and rules.

Sincerely,

Donald S. Beyer Jr.
